

Hollywood's BUSTING OUT

Stars are showing off new curves — but are they real?

Renée's boobs have really blossomed

Supporting a clingy wrap dress, Renée Zellweger's rack looked a lot rounder while out in LA on July 19. "Based on the size increase, I think it appears that she had breast implants," Dr. Gerald Ginsberg, director of the TriBeCa MedSpa, tells In Touch. "It looks like she went from a small B to a C cup." While her rep denies it, a friend of the 41-year-old star tells In Touch that her larger boobs have pals wondering if she secretly got implants to please her younger boyfriend, 35-year-old Bradley Cooper. "Renée thinks Bradley likes women with bigger breasts," says the friend, who adds that Renée's cleavage goes down when her weight plummets — so the implants could help counteract that. But the friend still insists Renée's newfound curves are the result of padded bras: "She just bought a bunch."

Dr. Gerald Ginsberg, director of the TriBeCa MedSpa, and New Jersey-based plastic surgeon Dr. Brian Glatt do not treat these stars.

Did Blake upgrade her B's?

Bloggers had a field day after seeing Blake Lively in June's Vogue with her cleavage reportedly airbrushed out. But on July 24, Blake put her girls front and center in a revealing Preen top while promoting her new film Green Lantern. "It looked like her breasts were going to pop out at any minute," an eyewitness tells In Touch. "They seem too perfect to be real." Dr. Brian Glatt, a plastic surgeon in Morristown, N.J., believes Blake got implants, even though her rep denies it. "The round shape of her breasts and the fact that they sit closer together are indicative of breast implant surgery," he tells In Touch.

MILEY WANTS A BOOB JOB

She's not even old enough to vote, but Miley Cyrus wants breast implants. According to a friend, the 17-year-old singer is hoping to go under the knife and get implants before she turns 18 this November. The pal says Miley has already been to a prominent Beverly Hills plastic surgeon for a consultation. "Miley wants curves," her friend reveals to In Touch. "She's mature for her age and doesn't want to wait a few months until she can have the surgery without her parents' permission."

Paris amps up her sex appeal

Paris Hilton's breasts have gone from flat to overflowing! And Dr. Ginsberg believes breast implants are the cause. "There is a clear-cut curve of the implant," he tells In Touch, adding that the volume of her boobs has also increased to a C cup from a B. In the past, a rep for the heiress credited her cleavage to "a prototype from her 'push-up bra' line." But Dr. Ginsberg notes the cleavage created by natural breasts usually hangs lower and further apart. Still, Paris, who denies she's ever had plastic surgery, claims it would be too scary for her, since she is afraid of "needles and blood."